LIAR is written in a fragmented style, jumping around in time, so that you never quite get a grasp on the timeline of the author's life. You don't need the times and dates to add up, however, to be drawn into this intense and poignant account of what it was like to be an addict losing great gaps of time, struggling through relationships, fighting loneliness and despair (and, on occasion,

~~Liar by Rob Roberge — Goodreads~~

“Uncompromising and deeply affecting, Liar is a brilliantly fragmented, darkly humorous account of a lifelong struggle with addiction and mental illness that stands with Fred Exley's A Fan's Notes. Strip-mining his memories for veins of truth, Rob Roberge unearths a fractured, unholy, and undeniable work of brilliance.”
